Biking School Bus

By Addy Eder

Making Biking More Accessible to Kids

CHALLENGE 1

Many children don't have regular opportunities to bike as part of their daily routine.

CHALLENGE 2

Traffic safety concerns, limited access to bikes, and riding alone can make biking to school difficult for families.

CHALLENGE 3

Introducing biking at a young age can help build confidence and make it a more familiar transportation option as children grow up.

Weekly Bike Bus at High Point Academy

Organize a group of elementary students to bike to school together along a planned route.

Adult volunteers accompany the group to help make the ride safe and welcoming.

Work with a teacher at High Point Academy to build interest, recruit volunteers, and coordinate the program.

Explore community partnerships to help provide bikes and equipment for students who need them.

From Planning to Pedaling

HIGH POINT ACADEMY

WISH FOR WHEELS

Phase 1

Connect with school leadership and get approval

Phase 2

Survey families to understand interest, volunteer availability, and where students live

Phase 3

Recruit at least two approved adult volunteers

Phase 4

Plan and test a safe route based on student locations

Phase 5

Coordinate equipment and promote the program

Phase 6

Launch the weekly rides and gather feedback

Growing Beyond the First Ride

2+ adult
volunteers for the first ride

5 students
riding in the first week

10 students
riding by the fourth week

50%
student retention each week

Long-term goal: Establish a volunteer team and a sustainable program that can continue to expand and adapt to an increase in involvement from students

THANK YOU!
